

NANI

Design by
Frédéric Sofia

Description

Far from wishing to impose its presence on the room in which it stands, Nani humbly contents itself with illuminating, revealing, magnifying, in a return to the first and foremost function of a light. And yet, when one looks more closely, one will catch the humorous touch of its shade being set on a slight slant, like a hat tipped by a mischievous gust of wind. And one will appreciate possessing an attractive piece which has been carefully put together using natural materials such as turned solid beech, or noble ones such as white opaline mouth-blown glass. Base and stem in turned natural solid beech. Shade in white opaline mouth-blown glass. White PVC cable.
